Family Medical Care Plans Pushed

The Armed Services are ready for D-Day on 7 December when the Family Medical Care Act goes into effect.

It will provide medical care for an estimated 800,000 wives and children of active duty personnel who heretofore could not avail themselves of military medical facilities because of distance or overcrowding.

They will be able to receive treatment from civilian doctors in civilian hospitals.

A report on the steps that are being taken to implement the MediCare Law was presented to the Association of Military Surgeons this week by Maj. General Silas B. Hays, MC, USA, Surgeon General of the Army.

Maj. Gen. Hays

Here is what he told the convention.

Public Law 569 of the Second Session of the 84th Congress made this Act a reality. Its purpose is to create and maintain high morale throughout the uniformed services. This will be done by providing an improved and uniform program of medical care for members of the uniformed services and their dependents. This includes personnel of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, commissioned members of the U.S. Public Health Service, and commissioned members of the Coast and Geodetic Survey. They must be on active duty in excess of thirty days to qualify. The Act also provides medical care for dependents of retired personnel as well as for dependents of personnel who died while on active duty.

THE MOST IMPORTANT FEATURE of the Act is that the estimated 800,000

Pentagon Steps Up Fiscal '58 Action On Budget—Career Incentive Decisions

Top Pentagon officials this week took up with new vigor their consideration of intricate problems connected with the fiscal '58 budget. Before the elections and before the outbreak of fighting in Europe and the Middle East it had been stated by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson that spending would go up and that manpower would go down.

Best guess now is that spending will go up, as forecast, but that there will be a reversal in plans to cut military manpower.

At the same time, work was accelerated under leadership of Assistant Defense Secretary Carter L. Burgess on the Department's 1957 career legislative program. This package will be highlighted by a revolutionary military pay raise proposal now being fashioned by the Cordiner Committee.

Within the next 30 days, decisions must be made at the highest level of Government, specifically the National Security Council and the White House, on 1) the fiscal '58 budget for the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps, and 2) what new action will be sought to block the loss of skilled manpower from all the Services.

Informed Pentagon sources indicated this week that critical budget decisions—primarily those related to manpower levels—probably will be delayed until the very last minute in view of fast-moving

General Lauris Norstad, USAF, will become Supreme Commander Allied Powers, Europe, and U.S. Commander-in-Chief, Europe, on 20 November. He succeeds General Alfred M. Gruenther, USA, who will retire on 31 December after 33 years service to become President of the American Red Cross. As USCINCEUR, General Norstad will command all U. S. military forces in Europe. His deputy for this responsibility is General George H. Decker, USA.

Shedd Hall At Bliss

A Ft. Bliss, Tex. modern office building has been named Shedd Hall in honor of the late Maj. Gen. William E. Shedd, jr., USA.

Maj. Gen. Robert J. Wood, USA, Commanding General of the Antiaircraft Artillery and Guided Missile Center, introduced Col. John H. Kochevar, USA, president of Continental Army Command's Board No. 4, who made the welcoming address at the ceremonies.

Brig. Gen. Arthur H. Bender, USA, Deputy Commander of the AAA & GM Center, made the principal address.

Brig. Gen. Tom V. Stayton, USA, Commander of the First Guided Missile Brigade, unveiled a dedicatory plaque reading: "Shedd Hall. Dedicated to the memory of Major General William E. Shedd, Jr. In recognition of outstanding performance of duty in war and peace. Born: 25 February 1885. Died 2 December 1953. Awarded: Distinguished Service Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters."

Shedd Hall is presently occupied by Continental Army Command Board No. 4, and the Field Artillery Missiles Division of CONARC Board No. 1.

Navy Studies 37 Proposals Affecting All Reserve Officers, Board Charges "Unduly Low Selection" Above Lieutenant

NAVY Secretary Charles S. Thomas has been told that 37 changes should be made in personnel policies affecting Reserve officers, including action to improve their promotion opportunities.

Citing "many defects" in the present system, a board headed by VAdm. Felix Johnson, USN-Ret., has come up with a plan to eliminate present difficulties.

The Johnson Board wants the Running Mate System preserved, but it advocates changes in the method of selecting Reserve officers for higher rank.

The Board heard from more than 2,000

Army Recommends Promotion For 537 ANC, 68 AMSC, 52 VC and 353 MSC Officers

The Army has announced the names of 1,010 officers of the Nurse Corps, Army Medical Specialist Corps, Veterinary Corps and Medical Service Corps recommended for promotion to lieutenant colonel, major and captain, AUS.

The group includes 537 Nurses. Eighteen are recommended for promotion to lieutenant colonel, 232 to major and 287 to captain.

Those recommended for promotion in the AMSC include four to lieutenant colonel, 18 to major and 46 to captain.

The lists also include 52 officers recommended for promotion to captain in the Veterinary Corps and 353 for promotion to captain in the Medical Service Corps.

Twenty-seven of the Nurses, and two AMSC officers on the promotion lists to lieutenant colonel and major were selected from below the primary zone of consideration. These "outstanding" officers are indicated by two asterisks.

Promotion of those officers whose names are preceded by the symbol "*" is subject to an ACSI check.

Army Surgeon Tells MediCare Plans

From first page—

spouses and children of active duty personnel, who heretofore could not avail themselves of medical service in uniformed activities because of distance and overtaxed facilities, can now receive such treatment through civilian channels. In other words, your wife and mine may now be treated by civilian physicians and hospitalized in civilian hospitals.

Initially no restriction will be placed on the free choice of the spouse and children between care in uniformed or civilian hospitals. However, such a restriction may be enforced at a later date if it becomes apparent that uniformed service facilities are available and are not being utilized.

Both in-patient and out-patient care will be available in uniformed medical treatment facilities, but treatment in civilian facilities will be limited to in-patient care primarily.

Out-patient dental care in uniformed installations will be limited to treatment of emergencies, but dental care will be provided in both civilian and uniformed facilities if it is a necessary adjunct to medical or surgical treatment.

You're probably interested in the chain of command of this program. Here's how it works.

The Secretary of Defense, after consultation with the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare is responsible for the implementation of the Act. Authority was delegated to the Secretary of the Army to act as the Executive Agent to provide for treatment of dependents in civilian facilities in the Continental United States, Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico. The Secretary of each uniformed service has been delegated similar authority to implement the Act in their respective medical facilities and in civilian treatment facilities in other overseas areas.

The Secretary of the Army, as Executive Agent, has delegated authority to the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics as Program Director to carry out the Act with respect to care in both civilian and uniformed facilities. This authority has been delegated to me as Deputy Program Director. I, then in turn, designated Major General Paul I. Robinson as the Executive Director to administer the phase of the program dealing with the civilian facilities. The Chief of Medical Plans and Operations of my office will handle dependent treatment in Army hospitals as before.

GENERAL ROBINSON'S OFFICE has the authority to contract for medical care under any insurance, medical service or health plan or plans as may be appropriate. Contracts are being negotiated with Blue Cross and insurance companies which will provide for payment of authorized costs of hospitalization. In other words, they will pay the hospital bills and then once a month they will be reimbursed by the Government. Contracts for payment of physicians are being negotiated with the medical societies and their fiscal agents in each state or territory. They also will be reimbursed on a monthly basis. If these negotiations are not complete by 7 December of this year, then special provisions will be made for the Army areas to effect such payments until the contracts are completed and in performance. These negotiations began on 23 October, and at the last report are proceeding satisfactorily.

Until operating experience is gained, no firm evaluation of the impact of the Dependents' Medical Care Act on the uniformed medical services can be made. At the present time, however, significant changes in personnel and bed requirements do not appear likely.

If this program produces the results we hope for, it should be important in promoting career service to a greater percentage of our forces. If only a small percentage of the one million men we lose annually can be retained in service through the provisions of this legislation, then it will pay for itself many times over.

D-Day for this Act is 7 December 1956. This will be the beginning of a new era in medical care and one that may set a new pattern in cooperation between civilian and military medicine.

Admiral Radford Calls For "Very Best" Medical Care; Urges Preventive Measures

Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Admiral Arthur W. Radford, USN, says the Armed Forces "must have the very best of professional medical care."

Speaking before the annual convention of the Association of Military Surgeons, the JCS Chairman also declared that the individual member of each Service "should be more expert in preventive medicine."

He said it is his feeling "that preventive medicine can no longer be limited to the problems of simply preventing the transmission of disease. Instead each individual must have an understanding of the personal preventive medicine of building his own physical strength, stamina, and resistance to disease."

"From where I sit as a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, I sometimes wonder about this aspect of our preventive medicine. I wonder if we are adequately stressing the appropriate principles of personal and individual health."

"... Does the individual officer in some key position of responsibility have a reasonable medical understanding of the 'why' in heart disease? Does he know how he might minimize some of the causes of this serious disability? And is he aware of the serious physical detriments involved in obesity?"

"Then take our young military specialists—our jet pilots, submariners, guided missile experts, and the like—do you think that they really understand the dynamic forces of nuclear power, supersonic speeds, toxic chemical fumes, electricity, and high altitudes? Do they know the different forces which can surge through their bodies, and what their different effects will be?"

Admiral Radford told the Surgeons it is extremely important "that our military men know more of the principles of individual preventive physiology." He said he would like "every officer and enlisted man to be thoroughly schooled in the fundamentals of daily health."

He also reminded the gathering that the Armed Forces have a "great need for career doctors." He said "we need doctors dedicated to the military profession. We need surgeons and dentists and nurses and medical specialists."

In calling for the best of professional care for members of the Armed Forces, the JCS Chairman said "our medical and surgical services must not break down at any point in our many operations, climates, or environments."

Future demands on the medical profession will be heavy, he said, "if we are to maintain a rate of progress second to none, and keep our military postures in their most effective state."

He told the Surgeons, "The more effectively you support the fighting forces, the more men there will be to man their duty posts—and the fewer patients we will have in our military hospitals."

$24.48 PER MONTH

Soldiers and airmen during the past fiscal year spent an average of $24.48 per month in domestic post and base exchanges.

This was an increase from $21.97 the year before.

Overseas, the average is higher because more items can be carried and there is a lack of many items in the civilian economy.

Here's how the soldier and airman spent his dollar at the exchange.

Services Cut Loss of Career Doctors; Increase In Commissions Is Reported

The down-hill trend in the career medical ranks of the Armed Forces has been checked.

RADM. B. E. Bradley, MC, USN, Deputy Surgeon General of the Navy, revealed this week that new commissions in the Regular Medical Corps of the Army, Navy and Air Force during the first quarter of fiscal '57 are almost as great as the entire total for fiscal '56.

In a progress report delivered before the convention of the Association of Military Surgeons, Admiral Bradley said "the trend is on the upward swing."

He cited statistics which show that, in fiscal '54, resignations effective from the Regular Medical Corps of all three Services total 446, while only 144 commissions were accepted. In fiscal '55 there were 362 resignations and 206 commissions accepted. In fiscal '56, resignations dropped to 194 and accepted commissions climbed to 351. In the first quarter of the current fiscal year, resignations total 55, compared with 272 commissions accepted.

The Deputy Surgeon General said another gain is reflected in the larger number of requests from Reserve officers for extensions of active duty.

He gave these reasons for the "noticeable improvement in the career medical officer picture":

- Assignment of more non-professional personnel to purely administrative tasks.

- Improved promotion opportunities and increased pay for physicians and dentists.

- Greater opportunities for further specialty training, and opportunities to practice specialties.

- More stability in assignment, and improved living conditions for the families of medical officers.

- Assurance, under the new Dependent Medical Care Act, that the families of medical officers will always receive adequate medical care.

- New benefits, provided by the Survivor Benefits Act, for the families of career medical officers.

He said the Navy has taken steps to construct more public quarters for junior officers at numerous hospitals, and moves have been reduced to a minimum. "Moves now are limited mostly to those required by rotation to sea or overseas billets, by completion of training or of specified tours, and by separation," he noted.

Of particular interest in his own Service, Admiral Bradley said, is "the observation that already four Regular Navy Medical officers who had resigned, have asked to be recommissioned under stimulus of the incentive program and are back on duty. One additional such applicant has been approved but is not yet commissioned."

He told the convention, "Although it will require continued effort and considerable time to achieve the desired and necessary goal of a regular Medical Corps comprising roughly two-thirds of the authorized number of medical officers on active duty, the downward trend seems to be reversed and there is a noticeable improvement in the career medical officer picture."

Pentagon Steps Up Budget—Incentive

military developments in Europe and the Middle East.

It was stated that the outbreak of fighting in these areas is giving added impetus to the continuing campaign aimed at reducing the turnover of military men with technical skills.

Secretary Wilson has forecast that the budget to be sent to Capitol Hill in January will provide for a manpower cut of between 5 and 10 per cent. This would mean upwards of 140,000 men. He has said that spending will increase by 4-6 per cent.

Expectation has been that the largest manpower cut would be imposed on the Army, but there is reason to believe that the troubled world situation will force Defense officials to take a new look at their plans to reduce Army strength.

The fiscal '57 budget provides $36.59 billion for the Services, compared with $35.9 asked by the President. However, the initial requests of the Services to the Pentagon were $41.1 billion.

As cleared by Congress, the fiscal '57 appropriations for the year ending next 30 June give $7.8 billion to the Army, $10.3 billion to the Navy and $17.7 billion to the Air Force, which originally asked for $19.2 billion. OSD and interservice activities, including retired pay, account for $664 million.

If the history of the past five years is followed, the Services will ask the Administration for billions more than will be sought from Congress.

In FY '53, the "maximum requirements" request from the Services totalled $72 billion, with $53.2 billion asked by the President and $46.5 billion voted by Congress.

The next year, the initial Service request to OSD was for $39.5 billion. The Pentagon asked Congress for $36 billion and received $34.5 billion. In fiscal '55, the comparable totals are $36.8 billion, $30.9 billion and $29.5 billion approved by the Congress.

In fiscal '56, the Service said they needed $38.6 billion, but the President's budget reduced this to $33.6 billion. Congress O.K'd, $33 billion.

Such data is not available on manpower levels, but it is known that there have been reductions each year from the number of men the Services say they need to perform their missions and the number approved by the President and Congress.

At the beginning of last month, the Armed Forces had 2,793,391 men and women in uniform, a decrease of 5019 from the previous month. The Army had a 1 October strength of 1,005,558; Navy, 676,661; Marine Corps, 201,732; and Air Force, 909,440.

Although concerned by prospective personnel cuts, military chiefs are most worried by the fact that heavy losses continue among skilled manpower.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Service Secretaries will give emphatic endorsement to proposals being put together by Assistant Secretary Burgess which are designed to encourage more outstanding men to remain in uniform.

A pay raise request is a certainty, but it will be no across-the-board increase. Selective increases will be sought, as reported in recent issues of THE JOURNAL, with rewards going to men in critically needed skills. It is expected that pay increase for officers in the ranks of first lieutenant, captain, major and lieutenant colonel will be sought, with amounts from $40-$55 per month. Substantially more will be asked for colonels (Navy captains) and above, according to latest available information.

In addition to the pay legislation, the Pentagon will work hard to win Congressional approval for reduced rental charges for thousands of Service families in substandard quarters.

Another priority bill will seek to allow pay credit for service as cadets and midshipmen at Service Academies or membership in the ROTC program. The pay credit would begin after four years active service, thus providing another incentive for career service.

New legislation to improve career opportunities for Nurses and Medical Specialists also will be included in the 1957 program.

Numerous other bills touching on pay, promotions and family welfare are receiving consideration in the Services and at the Defense Department level.

THE COMPACT HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES ARMY

By COLONEL R. ERNEST DUPUY,
USA (RET.)

author of Men of West Point
Illustrated by Gil Walker

The whole United States Army marches through the pages of this book, in a parade almost 200 years long. This is not a history of American military strategy. It is the never-before-told story of the men (and their women and children, too) who have formed and been formed by the U. S. Army, from the tattered units of the Revolution to the far-flung forces of today.

If you are a veteran, a professional soldier, a West Pointer, a draftee or enlisted man, a National Guardsman or Reservist—or if you are or have been part of an Army family—you'll find yourself and your fellow Servicemen in this book: your thoughts and feelings and experiences, your problems, your effect on the Army, the Army's effect on you.

The Compact History of the United States Army is an unparalleled introduction to Army life and tradition by an officer, now retired from active duty, whose own Army career spans nearly half a century of the history about which he writes. $4.95

1st Army Leader Lays Down Program To Improve Prestige Of Junior Officers

A four-point program to improve the prestige of junior officers and cut resignations in the First Army has been drawn up by Lt. Gen. Thomas W. Herren, USA.

The First Army Commander has directed his CO's—at all echelons down to company level—to take vigorous steps to counter the resignation rate.

Under General Herren's plan, junior officers will be assigned duties which, in all respects, are in keeping with their rank, experience and educational backgrounds.

Wherever possible, First Army CO's will revise administrative procedures to place maximum reliance on the independent judgment and integrity of all officers.

Junior officers will be rotated through a variety of assignments as a means of giving them the widest possible experience.

They also will be given full responsibility and the necessary authority to carry out their assignments without undue supervision.

General Herren believes the steps will enhance morale, give younger officers a sense of responsibility and increase their over-all value to the service.

The move is part of an Armywide program to conserve trained skills in the active Army and reduce the rate of officer resignations from the Regular ranks.

In the First Army, factors most frequently influencing the decision of younger officers to resign were determined from a series of interviews with officers who applied for resignation during June and July.

Approximately 30 per cent of those interviewed mentioned such factors as: frequent moves, inadequate quarters, family separation or personal family problems.

Another third said they simply lacked interest in a military career or had a civilian job offer which was too attractive to turn down.

The remainder gave a variety of reasons which included such factors as: the absence of a merit promotion system, lack of prestige, desire to pursue further education in a professional field or financial problems.

In a letter to his commanders, General Herren noted that many of the reasons cited for resignation involve problems which require over-all Army action at the highest level.

He emphasized, however, that in areas of "job satisfaction," interest in the military as a career, and personal prestige, the influence of the immediate commander is paramount and of immense importance.

He directed his command to take immediate and continuing steps to improve the prestige of junior officers—from whom the preponderance of resignations come.

He indicated that the steps outlined in his program will help to instill in the officer a sense of achievement, a sense of "belonging" and a sense of pride in being a member of a noble, time-honored and proud profession, all of which are vital to the attainment of career satisfaction.

General Herren also pointed out that commanders must share the responsibility for creating conditions which will induce officers and men of competence, initiative and integrity to choose the profession of arms as their life's work.

Col. Roswell P. Rosengren, USA, has become Chief of the Technical Liaison Division, Office of the Army Chief of Engineers. He succeeds Col. Stanley G. Reiff, USA, who will become Executive, Civil Works, in the Office of the Chief of Engineers.

The present Civil Works Executive, Col. George H. Walker, USA, is being assigned to U.S. Army Forces Far East, for duty in Korea.

Since July 1955 Colonel Rosengren has been on duty at the Pentagon as Army member of the Joint Subsidiary Activities Division, Joint Chiefs of Staff. He is returning to a post he held from 1942 to 1944.

He lives with his wife and two of their three children at 108 Brookhaven Drive, Route 4, McLean, Va.

COL. S. I. GILMAN, USA, left, Chief of Staff at SETAF, in Verona, Italy, greets two top officials of the Defense Department at the Villafranca Airport—Mansfield T. Sprague, General Counsel, center, and Floyd S. Bryant, Assistant Secretary.

Shift Army Gens.

Maj. Gen. Edward G. Farrand, USA, Deputy CofS for Plans and Operations, AFCE/Eighth Army (Rear), will return to the U. S. in March and has been assigned to Headquarters, 1st Armored Division, Ft. Polk, La.

Maj. Gen. Henry R. McKenzie, USA, Comptroller, Far East Command, has been assigned to the Chicago Quartermaster Market Center, Chicago, Ill., reporting 15 Dec.

BRIG. GEN. THEODORE S. RIGGS, USA, former Senior Advisor, II ROK Army Corps, has been named Senior Advisor, First ROK Army. He replaces MAJ. GEN. EDWIN H. J. CARNS, USA, who now commands the 1st Cavalry Division in Japan.

BRIG. GEN. JAMES F. AMMERMAN, USA, has joined the 9th Infantry Division at Ft. Carson, Colo. He will become Division Artillery Commander, succeeding BRIG. GEN. M. M. MAGEE, USA, reassigned to the Pentagon. General Ammerman had been in Athens, Greece.

Sixth Army JAG

Appointment of Col. Carlos Edmond McAfee, USA, as Sixth Army Staff Judge Advocate is announced by Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, USA Sixth Army Commander. He succeeds Col. John H. Derrick, USA-Ret.

Colonel McAfee, holder of the Silver Star award and survivor of 42 months in a Japanese prisoner of war camp during World War II, arrived at the Presidio of San Francisco from Stuttgart, Germany, where he had been serving as Judge Advocate General for the Seventh Army.

He and Mrs. McAfee, the former Alma L. Anderson of Oklahoma City, reside at 70 Buena Vista, Mill Valley, Calif.

New Dummy Mine Device "Kills" Tanks

A new antitank mine simulator for use in testing Army tactical concepts and equipment, has been developed at Headquarters Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Va.

The device is typical of those to be used by the recently established Army Combat Developments Test and Experimentation Center (CDTEC) at Fort Ord, Calif. It is undergoing two weeks' extensive testing at The Engineer Center, Fort Belvoir, Va.

The antitank mine simulator consists of a transmitter in a plastic mine case and an electronic receiver on the tank. When the tank runs over the mine, a small transmitter sends an electronic impulse to an antenna mounted on the tank. This signal is relayed to a receiver set which in turn instantaneously shifts the tank's transmission into neutral, locking it and stopping the tank. This simulates the actual destruction of the tank.

Every phase of heater processing—initial coating, drying, winding, cataphoretic coating of the bends, inspection—takes place under Snow White conditions. Prior to inspection, heaters are encased in glass vials that further protect against dirt and lint.

"Snow White" parts manufacture adds to reliability of General Electric 5-Star Tubes!

Production of General Electric high-reliability 5-Star Tubes—subminiatures and miniatures—is completely Snow White. Processing of all parts—heaters, cathodes, grids, plates, mica spacers, etc.—takes place in the hospital-clean surroundings of G.E.'s 5-Star factory, where the tubes also are assembled and thoroughly inspected.

Even the tiniest particle of dirt or lint can cause intermittent short circuits and impair a tube's operation. So at every stage of 5-Star production, General Electric employs meticulous care in excluding these sources of tube contamination.

From design through Snow White manufacture and testing, General Electric 5-Star Tubes are built for dependability in critical service. Strengthened construction makes 5-Star Tubes shock-resistant . . . precision manufacture by specially trained workers safeguards electrical performance . . . rigid tests that duplicate field conditions mean every 5-Star Tube is ready to do its job when installed.

In new military electronic equipment, specify G-E 5-Star high-reliability tubes! Use them for replacements! General Electric Company, Electronic Components Division, Schenectady, 5, N. Y.

HQMC Fixes Dates Of Reserve Boards

HQMC has set dates for meetings of selection boards to choose inactive duty Reserve officers for promotion to all ranks, from warrant officer through lieutenant colonel.

Four boards are slated to convene on 15 Jan. 1957.

Reserve male officers will be named by a board which sits on 29 Jan. The captain board meets on 19 Feb. and the CWO board on 12 March.

To Colonel—Those in the grade of lieutenant colonel senior to and including John P. Brody, 06451, USMCR, who were not on active duty with the Regular Marines on 6 Aug. 1956.

To Lieutenant Colonel—Those in the grade of major senior to and including Harvey C. Weeks, 016300, USMCR, who were not on active duty on 27 Aug. 1956.

To Major—Those in the rank of captain senior to and including Walter H. Polak, 049519, USMCR, who were not on active duty on 27 Aug. 1956.

To Major (Women)—Those in the grade of captain senior to and including Julia M. Hornsby, 047441, USMCR.

To Captain—Those in the grade of 1st lieutenant senior to and including Richard L. Martson, 060171, USMCR, who were not on active duty on 29 Oct. 1956.

To Captain (Women)—Those in the rank of 1st lieutenant senior to and including Eileen M. Gathy, 063018, USMCR, who were not on active duty on 1 Nov. 1956.

To 1st Lieutenant (Permanent)—Those commissioned 2d lieutenants prior to or during calendar year 1954.

To Chief Warrant, W-2, W-3 and W-4—Warrant officers who will have completed three years in grade during calendar year 1957 and Chief Warrants who will have completed six years in grade during calendar year 1957.

Officers whose names already appear on a promotion list will not be considered.

From first page—

Regular and Reserve officers—from fleet admiral through ensign—throughout the United States and obtained the views of officers responsible for the administration of the Reserve in the Army, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard.

In releasing its suggestions, the Johnson Board emphasized that the recommendations still must be acted upon and are not to be interpreted as Navy policy until final action is completed.

The Board attributed the inequities in the Reserve promotion system to "the great influx of officers into the Navy during WW II and the Korean War."

Here's a list of the Board's recommendations (the Board's reasoning is in small print):

1. Seek legislation to amend the Officer Personnel Act of 1947 to require that Reserve officers eligible for selection to the ranks of lieutenant commander, commander and captain be considered by boards separate from those considering Regular officers.

Reserves on extended active duty compete for promotion against Regulars and as a result, Reserves have been receiving unduly low selection to grades above lieutenant.

2. Seek legislation which will allow the Navy Secretary to furnish the Regular and Reserve selection boards the maximum number to be chosen in each category.

In other words, each board would be given numbers based on the percentage of eligible Regular and Reserve officers.

3. Seek legislation to provide that Reserve officers should comprise 50 per cent of the membership of boards which consider Reserve officers.

4. Seek legislation to eliminate "dual selection" criteria.

Under OPA, Reserves on extended active duty are considered for selection under the inappropriate criterion of "qualified for continued active duty." This has required administrative interpretation and resulted in confusion of selection board members who also must consider Regular officers competing against Reserves for the same vacancies, but under the criterion "best fitted."

5. Have the Navy Secretary furnish the boards considering inactive duty TAR'S (except flag boards) the maximum number which may be picked.

Under the Reserve officer Personnel Act of 1954, TAR's compete against inactive duty Reservists. TAR's have enjoyed an extremely high percentage of selection compared to inactive duty officers. Although this is to be expected because of the outstanding quality of TAR's, an unlimited possibility of selection does not provide the necessary competitive climate for TAR's.

6. Inactive duty officers from all sections of the country be considered for board memberships convened under the ROPA.

The present practice, to conserve funds, has been to choose as members officers who live east of the Mississippi, particularly in Washington, D. C. Although no evidence of sectional bias has been found, the practice is subject to the criticism that bias is possible.

7. Seek legislation to pay the same per diem rates to all officers who serve as board members.

At present, inactive duty Reservists are not reimbursed at the same rate as Regulars and active duty Reservists who are ordered to duty from outside the District of Columbia area. (Legislation along these lines was introduced at the last session of Congress but not enacted.)

8. Seek legislation to permit the Navy Secretary to set a fixed numerical base of Reserve Line officers to which percentile limitations in the ranks of Reserve officers may be applied.

ROPA sets a 150,000 Reserve ceiling on officers in Reserve status and requires that the permanent grade distribution of Line Reserves be based upon the number of Reserve Line officers currently in an active status. This linking of grade distribution to a fluctuating base is unrealistic since it requires a percentile limitation which may not dovetail with mobilization requirements.

9. Keep the Running Mate System intact as it is.

To establish a lineal list for Reserve officers would create additional problems unless drastic attrition were applied. Reserve officers overwhelmingly favor retention of the Running Mate Principle even at the expense of reduced selection opportunity.

10. Give USNR's an assurance that the Running Mate System is a basic part of the Navy's promotion plans for the future.

11. Vigorously employ presently authorized administrative measures to transfer to the inactive status list the following classes of inactive Reserve officers who are in an unobligated status: (a) those who repeatedly have failed to submit required reports or to reply to official correspondence; (b) those who have failed to report for regular quadrennial physicals; (c) those overage in grade; and, (d) those who have been twice passed over or who have satisfactorily completed 20 years' Federal service for retirement purposes.

12. Retired and inactive status list officers should not be considered in competition with active status officers for available billets.

As an administration practice, a certain percentage of these officers have been taken into consideration in computing vacancies in grades open to officers in an active status. This practice has served to block the advancement path for active status officers.

13. Have the Navy Secretary convene an annual board to consider removal from active status flag officers who have not yet reached the mandatory retirement age.

The board should consider removing from active status Reserve admirals who have completed five years in grade or who have reached their 60th birthday, whichever is first. At present, the Navy Secretary is allowed to keep on active duty Reserve flags until they reach age 64. As a result, there soon will be little or no chance for advancement of juniors. Attention should be given to the need for a steady input of younger blood into flag rank.

14. Administer promotion of Reserves to temporary ranks under ROPA without regard to percentile limitations placed upon appointments to permanent ranks; this practice should be continued only until proper promotion flow is reestablished.

Because of the tremendous "hump" of Reserve lieutenant commanders and commanders resulting from the large numbers taken into the Navy during the wars, an inordinate number exists in these ranks. The percentile limitation imposed by ROPA upon the number of permanent captains and commanders does not apply to temporary promotions to these grades. Unless temporary promotions are allowed to exceed the percentile limitation on permanent grades, many officers will be denied an equitable chance for promotion.

15. Amend OPA to provide the percentile limitations equal to those applicable to the selection of Regulars from below the zone to be applied to Reserves.

Under OPA, boards are allowed to select five per cent of Regulars from below the zone. Under ROPA, boards are not permitted to go below the zone at all for Reserves who are not on active duty. The privilege of accelerated advancement should be extended to all officers, Regulars and Reserves, both active and inactive.

16. Amend ROPA to allow boards to pick for accelerated promotion a number not to exceed five per cent of the officers (including TAR's) authorized to be picked from the zone, provided that any officer picked must have served by 1 July of the Fiscal Year in which the board meets, the following minimum time in grade in an active status: captain, three years; commander, 5; lieutenant commander and lieutenant, 4; and lieutenant (jg), 2. In addition, the Navy Secretary is asked to establish rules for numbers to be considered from the total field of eligibility.

The last provision is necessary to preclude the necessity of the board having to consider "an impossible number of records."

17. Adopt the proposed new inactive duty training fitness form being developed by the Bureau of Naval Personnel.

18. Develop an active duty for training fitness report form which will permit accurate evaluation of the skills and qualifications of inactive Reservists while performing active duty training.

19. Establish a course in methods, principles and responsibilities in execution of fitness reports for prospective commanding officers and make completion of the course a prerequisite for command assignment.

20. Revise the form of the annual qualification questionnaire to increase its value to selection boards by showing a more detailed record of civilian progress.

21. Take early action to expand the designator system applicable to Reserve officers so as to classify them into a number of groups adequate to reflect the qualifications and experience of the individual.

At present, there are over 100,000 officers assigned the 1105 designator. These officers have widely varying skills. There is an insufficient number of classification groups to reflect specialties.

22. Seek legislation to allow the Navy Secretary to specify to selection boards separate numbers of Reservists of stated qualifications which may be picked.

Under the present promotion system, officers classified by the "catch all" designations, such as 1105 and 1355, compete against each other for advancement without regard to their relative proficiency in a given skill. At the same time, Reservists carrying designations corresponding to those of Regulars restricted in performance of duty are forced to compete with others carrying unrestricted Line designations. Officers who have like specialist qualifications should compete for promotion against one another for a given number of vacancies dictated by the needs of the service.

23. That the Navy Secretary exercise his present authority to specify such numbers under ROPA.

24. Make standards for qualification for promotion to lieutenant and below the same for Regulars and Reserves on active duty.

Requirements for qualification for promotion are somewhat less extensive for Reserves on extended active duty and TARs than for Regulars. While this is justifiable for grades above lieutenant where detailing patterns are different, no justification can be found for the practice in the rank of lieutenant and below since experience levels are the same.

25. Keep the different standards for promotion to the rank of lieutenant commander and above for Regulars and Reserves.

26. Give to Reserves not on active duty, enrolled in schools, one promotion point for each semester hour satisfactorily completed, up to a maximum of 12 points each Fiscal Year.

27. With the exception of recommendation 26, no promotion points be awarded to officers for their civilian attainments.

28. Consider inactive duty Reservists for promotion who are in an active status and who have earned 12 or more retirement points during the Fiscal Year in which the board meets; and,

29. Keep the 24 promotion-points-per-year-in-grade requirement, with a maximum of 144 promotion points necessary to accept advancement; and,

30. Extend the time in which to complete required promotion point credit until 30 June of the second Fiscal Year following the year in which picked.

31. Have the Navy Secretary vigorously support the Reserve officer severance pay plan proposed by the DoD Ad Hoc Committee on Retention of Junior Officers.

The pay plan provides for severance pay in amounts equal to that provided Regular officers under OPA. Forced attrition should be accomplished at a time when readjustment to civilian life would not impose undue financial hardship. This requires that officers be separated before they reach age 35, or after about 11 years of continuous service.

32. Extend the time within which Reservists on inactive duty may request integration from 12 to 24 months following release from active duty.

33. Make the chance to integrate available to Reserve officers on extended active duty in approximately their 11th year of service.

At present, augmentation is available only to officers within their first seven years of commissioned service. This limitation has resulted in the loss to the Navy of many outstanding officers with greater service experience.

34. That the Reserve Billet Program previously approved by SecNav (in Feb. 1955) be fully implemented.

35. Readjust the number of Reservists now on active duty in the TAR Program to reflect the needs of the service.

36. Retain the present policies for attrition of WAVE Reservists and the WAVE selection board system.

37. Seek legislation to amend OPA and ROPA to allow a nurse to be a member of any board which is considering nurses for advancement.

HQMC Extends Deadline For Avn. Integration

Eligible Marine Aviators have been given an additional four months in which to submit applications for Regular commissions.

The change to the Integration Program, open to officers who were commissioned from the Naval Aviation Program, gives them until 31 May 1957, to submit applications. The old deadline was 1 Jan. 1957.

In order to be eligible for consideration, applicants must have initial dates of rank as 2d lieutenants between the inclusive dates of 5 June 1954 and 3 June 1955; have been less than 25 years old when they completed flight training; be

MAJ. GEN. ROY H. LYNN, USAF (left), Commander of Western Air Defense Force, congratulates Brig. Gen. James W. Andrew, USAF, who received the Legion of Merit upon the occasion of his retirement at Hamilton AFB, Calif. General Andrew, who in 30 years service totaled more than 10,500 flying hours, was recalled to active duty as Special Assistant to the Commander WADF, following his official retirement.

AF Finance Officer Cited

Col. Stanley A. Fulcher, USAF, who will soon become Director of Finance, FFAF, has been awarded the first Oak Leaf Cluster to the Commendation Ribbon for service given while on duty at the Air Force Finance Center in Denver.

The award is announced by Maj. Gen. John R. Gilchrist, USAF, Assistant Comptroller of the Air Force for Financial Matters and AFCC Commander.

While at the Center, Colonel Fulcher served as Chief, Finance Advisory Division; Chief, Accounting Division; and Chief, Systems Division of the then Directorate of Finance. It was for his work in the latter assignment that he was cited.

USAF's Giant Rocket Test Stand Nears Completion; Will Take Million-lb. Thrusts

IN California's Mojave Desert the Air Force is rushing completion of a giant concrete test stand which will provide the means to test rocket engines and missile components having up to 1,000,000 pounds of thrust.

The new stand, which will be an important addition to America's missile testing program, is the largest stand constructed by the Air Force to date.

Anchored some 60 feet into solid rock, with an overall length of 200 feet, the stand is designed like a reinforced concrete bridge type structure. It includes a 54-ft. concrete cantilever, 15 feet at the outer end and 40 feet thick at the haunch. This cantilever is approximately 150-ft. over a flame deflector pit which will lead the gases from the test vehicles away from the stand.

The Air Force has been conducting static rocket engine tests and performing missile research since 1952 at the huge 300,000 acre Edwards Air Force Base which lies on the western edge of the Mojave Desert. However, stands previously constructed there have been able to handle missile components of only half a million pounds of thrust.

Separated by 8 miles of desert wasteland from the main part of the Base, the stark, isolated eastern section of Edwards was chosen as the site for rocket test activities because sufficient rock foundation is available for heavy concrete structures. Another important feature is that the steep cliffs permit the great distance required between test stand and the flame deflector pit.

Major problem in structural design of the new test stand was devising a means to carry the loading to bedrock—and there are two opposite types of loadings. The facility must be able to support extremely high dead loads, while at the same time providing sufficient uplift resistance to the million pounds thrust developed during static test firings. The tests are referred to as "static" inasmuch as the missile components are fired while secured to the test stand. Test results and operational procedures, such as methods used to secure the test vehicles to the stand, are highly classified. However, it is certain that the cantilever must be capable of withstanding the tremendous upward surges of power generated at the time of the firings, which will put the bottom edge of the cantilever arm in tension.

At an intermediate level below the deck, and within the shell of the stand, special servicing and utility areas are provided. These include a machine shop, terminal room for data recording instruments, electrical and mechanical equipment rooms, and office space. The Ralph M. Parsons Company of Los Angeles performed the architectural services.

The cantilever is only a portion of the huge concrete structure provided to counterbalance the two opposing load forces. The stand is based on two massive concrete footings which fit deep into the rock. One is located across the transverse axis of the stand at the rear of the structure. The other was dug deeper into the rock and rests 146 feet below the deck of the stand. This footing is 30-ft. wide, 120-ft. long and 20-ft. deep. Both footings are solid mass concrete with no reinforcing except on the facing of the concrete.

Over 26,000 cubic yards of class "A" concrete are being used in the structure. At the bottom of the stand, walls are as much as 8 to 10 feet thick. Although a small portion of this concrete was handled by crane and bucket, most of it was pumped into place. While pouring beams and walls with cranes, a pumpcrete machine pumped the masses of concrete.

With the casting of the cantilever complete and the falsework tower removed, excavation work has started for the flame deflection pit which is a 60-ft. deep pit that lies 150 feet below the deck of the stand.

Before a test setup rocket fuels are cooled to as low as -300°F. which is necessary to keep the volatile propellant mixtures from chemically reacting with each other and exploding. However, tremendous heat is generated by the rocket fuels when they are fired. The deflector pit is designed to withstand temperatures up to +2,000°F. The bottom slab and walls of the pit are of 18 inches thick concrete, with the top 4 inches of this made of a special refractory gunite. A steel deflector surface, adequately water cooled to withstand the jet impingement, has been deleted from this stand by the use of this special heat resistant gunited concrete. This is a significant advance over present techniques inasmuch as water is at a premium in the Mojave Desert.

Included in the project are a reinforced concrete instrumentation and control building, camera and observation posts, ready rocket fuel, oxidizers, and high pressure gas storage facilities.

Criteria for the facility was developed by U. S. Air Force engineers. Lt. Col. Henry W. Yagel, Installations Engineer for Edwards AFB supervised for the project for the Air Force. Administrator for the project is Col. Edwin M. Eads, AF Installations Representative, South Pacific Region.

Design and construction contract responsibility is that of the South Pacific Region, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, headed by Brig. Gen. William F. Cassidy. Contracts were let through the Los Angeles District, Corps of Engineers, headed by Col. Arthur H. Frye, Jr. Mr. Bruce Bennett is Resident Engineer for Rocket Base.

Suggest Insignia For SAC NCO Academy

Students at SAC's Non-Commissioned Officer Academy soon may be marching behind their own organizational guidon with a standard insignia.

Brig. Gen. Horace M. Wade, SAC director of personnel, said the proposed insignia was recently sent to USAF for final approval. If it receives the nod, insignia will probably first appear as the Academies' official guidon. The crest also will be placed on awards presented to the outstanding graduates and on all certificates of completion.

A standard insignia for all academies has been considered for some time. During a recent academy commandants' conference at SAC headquarters, it was recommended that each academy propose an insignia for command-wide adoption.

After all entries were considered, that suggested by the Eighth Air Force Academy was accepted.

MATS Air Evac Group Gets New Designation

A new name has been approved for the group operating the flying ambulances of the Military Air Transport Service.

Col. L. Render Braswell, Surgeon, MATS, announced that the new group designation is the 1st Aeromedical Transport Group (Light). It is under Continental Division, MATS. The previous designation was 1706th Air Transport Group (Air Evac).

Commander of the aeromedical group, Col. Owen H. Rigley, explained that the 1st Aeromedical Transport Group is a specialized organization and the new designation will more accurately identify the work of airlifting the sick and wounded. Headquarters of the group will remain at Brooks AFB, Tex.

Five squadrons in the group also are redesignated as the 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th and 15th Aeromedical Transport Squadrons.

2d AF Surgeons Meet

A Surgeon's Conference for Second Air Force medics was held 13-15 Nov. at Ramey AFB, P.R., with Brig. Gen. Lloyd E. Griffiths, SAC surgeon, and representatives from Eighth and Fifteenth Air Force surgeon offices in attendance. Also on hand were dental surgeons, sanitary engineers and chief nurses from throughout the command.

Lockheed C-130 "Hercules"
...with Marquette

WINDSHIELD WIPERS

Marquette Windshield Wipers contribute an important safety factor to the new USAF Lockheed C-130 Hercules, first American aircraft basically designed for economical turboprop power and for the air movement of cargo.

Whatever the weather, pilots and co-pilots in the Tactical Air Command have clear vision for take-offs and landings. These wipers keep the windshields clean in snow, ice, sleet and rain. They are light in weight, yet rugged and positive in action.

Marquette Windshield Wipers are giving dependable performance on 17 military planes currently in production, and on virtually every airline in the world.

Gen. Gruenther's New Job. The day after he retires from active service on 31 December, ending a brilliant career of 38 years service, General Alfred M. Gruenther, USA, will become President of the American Red Cross. Described by President Eisenhower as "my great friend, as well as an extraordinarily able administrator and diplomat," the Supreme Allied Commander Europe obviously will be making a considerable financial sacrifice to take the challenging Red Cross public service assignment. There is no question that his great skills would command salaries in industry at least double or triple the reported $30,000 a year that he will receive.

As President of the Red Cross, General Gruenther, in addition to his many other great responsibilities, will supervise a world-wide program of around-the-clock assistance to members of the Armed Forces and their families. Through the years, in war and peace, the Red Cross has been at the side of the Services. Thousands of Service wives in all parts of the world are active in the Red Cross.

General Gruenther's appointment to the internationally respected job of American Red Cross chief points up anew how the skills and experience of military leaders in all ranks can be utilized when their active careers in uniform must come to an end.

As he prepared this week to turn over his NATO command to General Lauris Norstad, USAF, General Gruenther told of progress that has been made in building a military alliance to deter Soviet aggression. He warned Russia that if the Communists attacked, they would be destroyed "as sure as day follows night." His words, backed by the might of a force he did so much to build, come at a time when the Soviets are pursuing ambitious projects in Europe and the Middle East and are issuing provocative threats against the Free World. Significantly, the SACEUR declares in leaving his NATO command that our conventional forces in Europe cannot be slashed at this time.

Thus, General Gruenther puts himself in opposition to proposals that U.S. military manpower be reduced by at least 140,000 men in the next fiscal year. It is widely recognized that such a reduction could be achieved only by withdrawal of substantial forces from Europe. General Gruenther does not believe that such a withdrawal can be made at this time without endangering the Free World.

In his new post in Washington, General Gruenther is certain to be called upon frequently for advice on military matters—not only by his long-time friend, President Eisenhower, but also by our top Defense Department people and by Members of Congress. This is as it should be; his counsel is vital in the critical days ahead, when the military strength of the Free World must be strengthened further to meet the new challenges of the restless Russians.

Heartening Progress. Every Service family will be heartened by statements made to the Association of Military Surgeons regarding progress in the campaign to provide better medical care in the Armed Forces. THE JOURNAL has found it necessary so many times during recent months to point out shortcomings in career attractiveness areas that it is a special pleasure to report such a notable step forward as is taking place in the vital field of medical care.

The Surgeons General are able to say at last that the resignation rate among medical officers is declining. The loss of large numbers of skilled physicians and dentists was proper cause for alarm in the Services, for this meant that the quality of medical care was suffering for want of adequate specialists. Now, there is hope that increased stability in the Medical and Dental Corps will permit the Services to expand their training programs to insure adequate numbers of career specialists.

As reported by Surgeon General Hays of the Army, (page one), preparations have been made for the start of the new Family Medical Care Program on 7 December. The Services have dispatched detailed instructions to the field, and all will be ready on the official date of implementation. It is to be expected, of course, that some difficulties will be encountered and that it will take time to work out all the details. However, the Defense Department has taken precautions to insure that all problems will be handled expeditiously.

The Family Medical Care Program has been characterized during the past months by the highest degree of cooperation at all levels of Government and has been aided greatly by the skilled assistance of civilian authorities.

The result will be that some 800,000 wives and children who heretofore have been denied adequate Service medical care now will receive this traditional benefit. This will be one of the greatest morale advances in recent years.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—In extension of its policy of developing the ability of naval forces to operate under any and all climatic conditions, a task force of the Atlantic Fleet, augmented by units of the Pacific Fleet, will proceed to the Antarctic as early in 1947 as ice conditions will permit to carry out an extensive training and development program there throughout the duration of the navigable season.

50 Years Ago—Capt. Matthew C. Butler, 7th U. S. Cav., contends that the revolver should be substituted for the saber as a Cavalry weapon and that the saber should be used only in garrison duty and perhaps in riot duty.

90 Years Ago—The present War Department building, Washington, being too small for the business of the Department, a site is about to be selected upon which it is contemplated to erect a suitable building, in which the various Bureaus can be brought together. At present they are scattered about in various houses, which have been leased by the Quartermaster-General.

The BOQ Problem

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Congratulations to Brig. Gen. Keith R. Barney (THE JOURNAL) for highlighting the bachelor officers' housing plight.

Inadequate living facilities have long been recognized by the Army Nurse Corps as a leading cause of attrition among its all volunteer corps composed primarily of single officers.

Repeated queries to nurses asking why they are (a) resigning or (b) not joining the Regular Corps elicit the response of undesirable living conditions. The bachelor officer does not expect preferential treatment at all, but rather wistfully hopes for a little more equalized consideration in the assignment of quarters.

I forfeit a quarters allowance of $94.20; in addition, I pay a quarters fee of $12.50. For this monthly total of $106.70, I have two rooms with intervening bath (I must walk through the bathroom to get from bedroom to living room) and share common cooking facilities with 10 other women.

Dr. Teller's Speech

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Thank you for publishing the text of Dr. Edward Teller's speech (THE JOURNAL 3 Nov.) to the recent meeting of the Association of the U.S. Army. I believe that the fighting in Europe and the Middle East must have hurt the coverage of that speech, with its important predictions concerning future Army units.

It certainly received scant treatment in the newspapers I saw.

Dr. Teller talks about highly specialized combat units of several hundred men each and he emphasizes the need for highly skilled personnel in these units. I am now waiting for some of our top Army people to spell out in greater detail their ideas about Army atomic battlefield units that can move anywhere in a hurry and do a job fast.

Up to now—let's face it—we have heard a lot of vague talk about the development of such units. Now, one of the world's famous scientists puts it on the line and says what he thinks is necessary.

It seems to me that if the Pentagon hushes up a frank discussion of Dr. Teller's proposals that Congress will want to interrogate the leaders of the Army on this matter.

In any event, it surely is refreshing to learn that the Army's ideas about smaller, highly mobile combat forces are taking hold in certain segments of our population. Now, we must hope that the Army will continue to tell its story and thereby offset widely held opinions that we are behind the times in our tactics and strategy.

COLONEL, USA.

Substandard Rentals

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I am one of the 30,000 military men whose families are forced to occupy substandard quarters and who still must forfeit their entire rental allowance.

During the last Congress, we were certain that something was going to be done about our situation at last, but because of crossed signals, the bill didn't pass. Now, we are advised that the Pentagon will try again.

Certainly, it's not asking too much to hope that the Defense Department submits a bill to the 85th Congress within a week after it convenes and then pushes for immediate enactment of the proposal. And, please, let's have some effective coordination, so that a ludicrous situation is not repeated. There was a bill which everybody wanted—the Pentagon, House, Senate and the President—but it was not enacted.

A Still Hopeful

Salute to General LeMay

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Your recent stories about the fight that General LeMay of SAC is conducting to win a pay raise and other benefits, such as cheaper prices at the commissary and exchange, give all of us in uniform a lift—even those who are in other services. There is no question about it; as head of the nation's bomber force, he carries tremendous influence in Congress.

I only hope that when the Cordiner Committee Report is released and the Pentagon goes to Capitol Hill before new legislation that General LeMay will be called to Washington to testify. He doesn't pull any punches.

If the present situation threatens to leave us with a non-professional force in SAC and other commands, then the country had better get the word straight from the chief's mouth. I am certain that General LeMay and his people will keep up their good fight, and undoubtedly they will get help from the other commands.

Army's New Troop Information Program Stresses Importance of Soldier's Role

BY MAJ. GEN. G. S. MELOY, JR., USA
Chief of Information, Department of the Army

ONE of the most frequently asked questions in the Army is: Why do we have a Troop Information Program? Seldom is the question asked: Why do we have a Public Information Program? The American people have the right to know what their Army is doing, and that we have the responsibility to tell them is understood.

Maj. Gen. Meloy

Public Information is just one part of the Troop Information Program. Add "Troop Information," "Community Relations," "Civil Liaison" and "Planning" and we have Information.

Each one of these major parts of Information could well be the subject of such an article as this. I have selected Troop Information because the old Troop Information and Education Program has recently been changed by separating the two elements, a change which may be misunderstood.

Over the years, since 1941, when it was formally started with admirable intentions, objectives and principles, TI&E lost face with most Army personnel. It became a "demand feeding" activity with no appeal.

During the past six years several committees and groups of individuals have recommended numerous changes in the handling of TI&E. The articles which appeared in the New York Times during 1951 by Dr. Benjamin Fine, Education Editor of the Times, did much to focus attention on many of the inadequacies of the program then in existence. All of the recommendations made by Dr. Fine have been carefully considered and many have been adopted.

As the new concepts were developed and implemented it became evident that the Troop Information part of TI&E and the Education part of it really did not belong together. They are both vitally important and both pointed toward the individual—but the approach, methods and objectives are different. They will both continue mutually supporting each other as before, but along different paths.

ACTION TO SEPARATE the Education part from the Troop Information part of TI&E has been completed at Department of the Army, and Continental Army Command is implementing action to carry out the separation in its subordinate commands. Troop Education, a personnel development service, is now a function of G-1.

Now take a look at the Troop "Public" and the relationship between Troop and Public Information.

Basically, the troops read the same newspapers, see the same TV programs and listen to the same radio stations as their civilian friends. Generally they arrive at the same conclusions, convictions, opinions and sentiments.

The importance and impact of troop information on public relations cannot be overemphasized. Every soldier, except for a few of us who may die with our boots on, will become a civilian. As alumni of the Army, their attitude is a direct result of Troop Information. Their attitude is the primary basis of the public attitude toward the Army. In support of this is a Gallup Poll made last year of public attitudes toward the military. Two out of three teenagers and seven out of ten adults listed as their most important source of information about the military the men who are or have been members of one of the three services.

THIS LINE OF THINKING led to action to obtain a closer staff relationship between Troop and Public Information. The two functions are being placed under a Chief of Information who reports directly to the Commander and Chief of Staff. Already accomplished at Department of the Army, action to carry the scheme down to the division and installation levels is being taken.

In this establishment of a closer relationship between Troop Information and Public Information, do not get the impression that one is to be subordinated to the other. They are very closely related, equally important and must be coordinated, but each is a separate function with a parallel but easily definable mission.

A letter to senior field commanders from the Vice Chief of Staff, General Williston B. Palmer, dated 27 September 1956, said in part: "While the public information function and the troop information function are related and mutually supporting, they cannot be merged into a single function, and neither should be subordinate to the other." He further stated that "The Chief of Staff considers it most important for every commander to give personal thought to the troop information program of his command, both in conception and execution."

These changes in staff arrangements are still not too well known throughout the Army. In view of this, and their importance to the program, I shall discuss them in more detail.

The objective of troop information has not changed. It is still: "To increase the effectiveness of the Army by providing information which increases the soldier's understanding."

What was changed was the concept of implementation. We wanted to put the program in the hands of the commander, the local commander, so that it would help him accomplish his mission. If his troops knew not only what, when and how they were to do something, but also "why," they would do it much better. The answering of this WHY cannot be fully accomplished by higher headquarters. It is a command problem down to the smallest unit.

A troop information program initiated at Department of the Army level, passed on through command channels, with flexibility and a minimum of prescribed subjects, and which gives maximum freedom to regimental, battalion, and company commanders, should allow a proper explanation of the word "why." The old system of a highly controlled program precluded this desired command aspect. It resulted in "lip service" to a program specified by a higher headquarters. Much of this was due to the fact that three subjects a month were prescribed by Department of the Army.

Department of the Army still has a master schedule. However, a maximum of one subject a month is now prescribed, and then only a subject of world-wide interest to all servicemen. These subjects are not picked at random. They are part of an over-all information plan, developed in close coordination with all staff agencies, and approved by the Chief of Staff.

EACH HEADQUARTERS in the chain of command must take the plan of the next higher headquarters and add or modify to meet its own needs. The final goal is to disseminate to a specific soldier at a specific place, information of such a nature and in such terms that he will more thoroughly understand his place in the scheme of things. If his understanding is improved his effectiveness is improved and the commander's job is that much easier.

In the same sense, no soldier should be sent to a strange country without knowing something of its climate, terrain, and people. This is military intelligence, true, but when put in a presentable style for the individual soldier, it becomes Troop Information. And above all, we must include: "Why" he is being ordered there.

The area of Troop Information which has received the severest criticism, most of it justified, has been the formal presentation, the classroom instruction, and the materials used or issued to support this part of the program. This can be attributed to two main reasons: First was the selection of the subject material; second was command interest and supervision.

The selection of subject material has been revised in an effort to reduce to a minimum this source of criticism. Subjects are prescribed as mandatory, by Department of the Army, only when they have Army-wide interest to all individuals and are essential to the overall effectiveness of the Army. These subjects not only have more inherent interest to the audience, the troops, but they are also easily supported by good instructional aids. Furthermore, the reduction of mandatory subjects by higher headquarters affords the local commander more opportunity to add subjects of his own choosing in problem areas in which his troops have an immediate interest.

In assisting the commander in this phase of his troop information program, the troop information officer is the commander's chief advisor. With the assistance of the rest of the staff, he must sense, analyze, and judge troop information requirements; anticipate, recommend and prepare necessary implementing actions.

COMMAND INTEREST and supervision of troop information can be improved. The new concept places the program in the hands of the commander as another means to develop the effectiveness of his command. Troop information is, in effect, the voice of the commander in explaining actions, procedures and developments to his men. He must supervise its implementation. If he delegates his voice (i.e. any part of the program) to a subordinate, he runs the risk of losing command control.

When formal presentation of troop information is scheduled, the commander must give as much care to the selection of the instructor, time for his preparation, and supervision of his presentation as he does to any other military subject on the training schedule. Troop information instruction should be presented by the same methods and with the same standards of instruction as any other training.

There is much more to troop information than these formal periods of instruction. Actually, troop information is any means that the commander may take to explain to his troops what is going on, to increase their understanding. Every action the commander takes, and every recommendation his staff may make, has troop information implications. Many of them can be taken care of in the course of events—by integration of necessary orientation into other training. In addition, informal announcements, daily bulletins, unit newspapers, radio and TV, officer and NCO calls, and all administrative means of getting information to the troops must be considered as a part of the information program.

We now have over four hundred Army newspapers and they are a proven means available to the commander for keeping his troops informed. This number falls far short of our ultimate goal that every man have available to him a unit newspaper in addition to his daily commercial paper.

Overseas we have the Stars and Stripes, radio stations and networks, and more recently television. These are troop information media and are of great value to the theater commander and the local commanders in keeping the troops informed, and in defense against enemy propaganda. One point, these media have a wonderful reputation for factual, non-propaganda, civilian-type reporting and newscasting. They should be kept as such. By their entertainment features they attract the audience, by their factual habits they have respect and by the commander's interest and guidance they have effect.

The commander, with the unlimited means available to him in his troop information activity, must convince each soldier that he is of personal importance to the Army; that he has an important job to do; that the efficient operation of his unit depends upon his effectiveness; and that he belongs to an organization which has a vital mission in a worthy cause. A soldier so imbued and properly trained in all other military matters will do his duty to the utmost of his ability.

We thus reach our objective—a more effective Army and an understanding of the Army by the American people, what it stands for, and why the United States needs a strong one.

4th ATAF Wins Gruenther Trophy In International Reconnaissance Meet

BY COL. T. D. BROWN, USAF
Chief, Reconnaissance Division, Allied Air Forces Central Europe, Fontainebleau, France

SEVERAL "firsts" fell by the wayside with the awarding of the General Gruenther Trophy for reconnaissance excellence to the Fourth Allied Tactical Air Force at a colorful ceremony at Lahr Air Base, Germany, recently. To name a few:

- 1) the first time General Gruenther had sponsored a trophy;
- 2) the first NATO competition scheduled by the Headquarters, Allied Air Forces Central Europe;
- 3) the first international reconnaissance competition.

The reconnaissance element of the Allied Air Forces of Central Europe is comprised of units from five of the NATO nations, and constitutes the largest Allied reconnaissance organization ever assembled in time of peace. To test the ability of this force to work together as a smoothly running integrated team, plans were begun in July of this year to conduct the first international photo reconnaissance competition. The competition was designed primarily to test the combat readiness and state of training of the AIRCENT reconnaissance force.

PLANS FOR THE EVENT became a reality when 12 select tactical reconnaissance crews, representing twelve squadrons from five nations flying NATO's latest operational jet fighter and bomber reconnaissance aircraft, took off from the French air base at Lahr and streaked for their targets. Lahr is the home of the Headquarters, 1st French CATAC, a member of the Fourth Allied Tactical Air Force and hosts for this initial international reconnaissance meet.

Forces represented in the competition were British, Belgian, Netherlands, French, and the United States, of the seven nationalities within NATO's Allied Air Forces Central Europe Command. The aircraft included some of the world's top-rated operational reconnaissance planes: the English Electric Canberra PR7, its U. S. version, the Martin RB57, the Supermarine Swift FR5, and the Republic RF-84F.

Missions were assigned just prior to takeoff, and included low level visual reconnaissance with photo confirmation, and high level day photographic missions. Elements of the competition included locating the targets, accomplishing high speed and high altitude photography under simulated tactical conditions of flak and enemy opposition, and returning to base with the necessary information for preparation

YOU WILL SOON BE HEARING more about SAF—Strategic Army Forces. Army planners have been working on plans for development of units of about 500 men each which, armed with specialized dual-purpose conventional and/or atomic weapons, can move anywhere in the world on a moment's notice. These volatile battle teams will be able to operate independently, or they can be mated with similar units into any sized group that is necessary for a particular mission. THE MIDDLE EAST SITUATION, as well as the crisis in Hungary, will be cited by Army chiefs as they tell the story of why such units are vital to national defense. It's believed that the Army would keep some of the 500-man combat teams at battle readiness at all times, as a "fire brigade." DON'T BE SURPRISED if the Navy, recognizing the need for such readiness, argues that the Marine Corps is exactly suited for such a mission. Whatever this inter-Service problem, the fact remains that in order for the Nation to have "strategic" ground force elements, the Armed Forces will require adequate airlift to move Soldiers or Marines quickly. Many ground force commanders do not feel that such an airlift capacity exists at this time, although the Air Force insists that it is able to meet all requirements for airlift that have been set by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

ATTACKS AGAINST MATS can be expected to subside as a result of the current world situation. MATS commanders, notably Lt. Gen. Joseph Smith, have argued steadfastly that MATS exists primarily as a D-Day force, ready for any assignment at any time—such, for example, as the airlift of U.N. forces. In effect, MATS is a strategic arm of Free World diplomacy, as well as being a ready-to-go military organization.

THE SERVICES ARE GEARING for unusually heavy holiday traffic this Christmas and New Years. The reason: both holidays occur on Tuesday, which means many Friday-Tuesday leaves.

THE CRITICAL SHORTAGE OF NURSES throughout the United States will give the Pentagon an added boost in its proposal to establish officer training programs for Army, Navy and Air Force nurses. M. Marian Wood, Veterans Administration nursing personnel specialist, told the Inter-State Nurses convention meeting in Washington, D. C., that the recruitment of sufficient professional nurses to carry out the nation's nursing care and health programs cannot meet the demand before 1965. She said there is a current shortage of 70,000 nurses. THE PENTAGON WILL USE these statistics when it goes to the Capitol early next year to ask for authority to train both Regular and Reserve nurses at Government expense.

OPERATION GYROSCOPE, which is seeing entire Army units rotated to and from overseas duty, moves another step forward with the dispatch of some 3500 specially trained replacements from Ft. Ord, Calif., to the 10th Infantry Division in Germany. The 10th was the first ZI division to "Gyro", leaving the U. S. in July 1955 and is due to return in 1958. THE ARMY WILL BE WATCHING to see how the replacement packets work out upon arrival in the Wurzburg-Schweinfurt-Kitzingen-Erlangen area of Germany. Army planners foresee great reliance on package replacement units in atomic battlefield planning.

A REVERSAL of usual industry-military training relationships is being proposed by Maj. Gen. R. L. Maxwell, USA-Ret., Senior Vice President of the American Machine & Foundry Company. In a speech this week before the National Security Industrial Assn. in Los Angeles, Calif., he noted that industry is training large numbers of military personnel. General Maxwell then urged that "serious consideration" be given to development of a program whereby industry could send selected young men to specialized military training installations "with the specific purpose of returning to industry eminently qualified to undertake the grave tasks imposed upon our national manufacturing facilities by the pressures of preparedness." HIS PROPOSAL is certain to attract wide attention. At present, industry is forced in some fields, where private training facilities are lacking, to bid high for military personnel, thus aggravating the Service turnover problem.

PENTAGON SPECULATION regarding a successor for SecDef Wilson, who is likely to leave office after work is completed on the fiscal '58 budget, centers largely around Air Force Sec'y Quarles. His service as Assistant SecDef for R&D before moving up to the top AF job is a major factor in his being tabbed as the likely successor to Mr. Wilson.

SECDEF WILSON'S PLAN to abolish the Veterinary Corps in the Services—he has said they are no longer needed, because the horses are gone—may be unseated. Military leaders are making a strong case regarding the urgent need for veterinarians in atomic age operations and space flight research. SERVICE VETERINARIANS, aside from numerous other duties, are responsible for thousands of animals used in research, such as the mice and monkeys that are projected into the ionosphere in high altitude studies. Military veterinarians also have won recognitions for their work in nuclear energy research. IN SHORT: it's no question at all as to whether or not the Services have horses, as Mr. Wilson is finding out in examining the impact of his announced plan to end the Veterinary Corps.

TOUGH SLEDDING APPEARS LIKELY for military pay raise legislation in the 85th Congress. A number of influential Representatives and Senators—some of them extremely sympathetic to the Services—have been saying that in view of the recent benefits voted for military men and their families—1957 might not be favorable for a pay hike. ON TOP OF THIS, there is the relevant fact that Defense expenditures are going up—and probably by more than the 4 to 6 per cent previously forecast by SecDef Wilson. This is because there now seems little prospect of a 5-10 per cent cut in manpower that had been in the works until fighting broke out in Europe and Egypt. WHAT SEEMS LIKELY is that Congress, if asked to vote a pay increase, will demand to know from the Services if such action would permit a reduction in manpower. If the answer is "yes", then chances for enactment of a selective pay increase would be brightened; but if the Pentagon's reply is that manpower totals cannot be reduced, then pay raise prospects will be lessened. THIS SITUATION makes it vital that the Defense Department and all the Services come up with a unified approach to military pay legislation—one that everyone can support vigorously. Unless that unanimity is achieved (and this could be a difficult proposition), Congress undoubtedly would turn aside 1957 pay raise legislation.

Special Tests Explore New Combat Problems

Army Signal Corps, Infantry, and Field Artillery Units from distant parts of the U.S. have joined forces to carry out a special series of tests at Fort Huachuca, Ariz, involving the firing of 81mm mortars, 4.2-in. mortars, and 8-in. 105mm and 155mm howitzers.

The tests are being conducted under the technical direction of the Electronic Warfare Department of the Army Electronic Proving Ground and are designed to investigate new combat applications in the ever-broadening field of military electronics.

The 1st Signal Group, a Fort Huachuca troop organization consisting of electronic experts of many kinds, is supplying the specialist manpower to operate and maintain the experimental electronic equipments used in the tests.

A special section of Battery "A" of the 268th Field Artillery Battalion, Fort Bragg, N. C., is supplying the 8-in howitzers. Fire-spotting facilities are being provided by the Flash and Sound Ranging Platoon of "A" Battery, of the 285th Field Artillery Observation Battalion, also from Fort Bragg. A special survey party with the platoon carefully located and mapped out the Fort Huachuca artillery ranges so that precise measurements of distances and directions can be made.

OVERHEAD EXPRESS...

When rugged terrain or lack of time prevents construction of roads and bridges, this aerial tramway comes to the rescue. Moving smoothly on cables, from ship to shore, or across rivers and gorges—this work horse solves supply problems. The tough training of these specialized tramway crews takes them to various parts of the country . . . and they must be moved to new assignments swiftly. That's why they're sent the five times faster way . . . on the speedy, dependable Scheduled Airlines. Call your Scheduled Airlines representative—and he'll tell you how you can save pay and per diem dollars, while keeping your men ON THE JOB . . . not "on the way."

but almost any clearing is its landing field!

On almost any clearing—almost any field—you can safely land the Fairchild C-123 assault transport. Actual short-field tests have demonstrated that the rugged C-123 is able to take off and land from deeply eroded, sandy fields; that it can work from unprepared clearings under downwind conditions; that it is capable of mass landings into ungraded "combat zones" . . . at 8-second intervals. And literally thousands of flights have proven that the C-123 requires no more than 700 ft. for takeoffs and landings. During these strenuous tests, no C-123 was lost, none was damaged. What better proof of the C-123's near-universal assault and logistics capability?

SERVICE FAMILY NOTES

KAISERSLAUTERN, GERMANY—Col. Harold W. Glascock, USA, Western Area Command Surgeon, presents a certificate of graduation from American Red Cross First Aid Courses at Vogelweh to Miss Janet Breden, daughter of WACOM Commander, Col. J. Paul Breden, USA.

MEMBERS of the Air Force Officers' Wives' Club of Washington, D. C., gathered at the Army-Navy Country Club for luncheon 8 Nov. The occasion was the regular monthly meeting of this club, which this month featured an address by Mrs. Helen Sutton Booth, noted interviewer and lecturer.

Mrs. Joseph M. McCoid, President, presided over the meeting and joining her at the speakers' table with Mrs. Booth were Mrs. Donald A. Quarles, Mrs. Lyle S. Garlock, Mrs. Dudley C. Sharp, Mrs. Richard E. Horner, Col. Phyllis D. S. Gray, Lt. Col. Helen O'Day, Mrs. Raymond J. Reeves, Mrs. Roscoe G. Rector, Mrs. Jack G. Merrell, Mrs. James J. Dmel, Mrs. William K. Kincaid, Mrs. Robert H. Cobb, and Mrs. Percy L. Jones.

Mrs. Lawson S. Mosely, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Booth, who spoke first of her "very tender feeling" toward Air Force wives due to the fact that her daughter is the wife of an Air Force captain.

MDW Officers' Wives Club To Meet—

The Military District of Washington Officers' Wives Club held its monthly meeting on 14 Nov. at Patton Hall, Ft. Myer, Va.

Mrs. Leon Baker was chairman of the program which centered on the theme "Decorating the Home for Christmas."

Engineer OWC of Washington—

Demonstration of a clever convertible travel hat which can be changed into a dozen different chapeaux was the highlight of a talk given to the Engineer Officers' Wives Club of Washington, by Miss Marjorie Harker, travel consultant for the Union Pacific Railroad, at a luncheon on 8 Nov., at the Officers' Club at Ft. McNair.

Designed by one of Washington's milliners, the "travel hat" was presented as a solution to one of Army wives' greatest packing problems. Miss Harker also discussed the latest fashions in luggage and fabrics and gave advice on many aspects of travel.

Included in the luncheon program was a welcome to newcomers by Mrs. Emerson C. Itschner, wife of the Army's Chief of Engineers, who is honorary president of the group. Mrs. Frederic S. Withington, president of JANGO, talked to the Club members about the part played by Engineer Wives in her organization's activities.

Presiding at the luncheon meeting was Mrs. Earle B. Butler, president. Mrs. George E. Pickett was chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements.

A-N-AF Cotillion Plans for 1956-57—

The Committee of the Army-Navy Air Force Cotillion has completed plans for the 1956-57 season, with a program of six dances beginning in November and ending in May. Col. William H. Spicer, Commanding Officer of Ft. Myer, Va., has authorized this non-profit organization to hold all of the dances at Ft. Myer's Patton Hall.

The program for this year includes dances on the following dates: Friday, 23 Nov., Thanksgiving Dance; Thursday, 27 Dec., Christmas Dance; Saturday, 16 Feb., Valentine's Dance; Friday, 15 Mar., St. Patrick's Dance; Saturday, 20 April, Spring Dance; and Saturday, 18 May, Graduation dinner dance.

The Cotillion was originally organized in the Washington area by members of the U. S. Military Academy Class of 1924, and several years ago the responsibility of managing the Cotillion was taken over by members of the Class of 1934. The present Committee is composed of Maj. Gen. (USAF) and Mrs. William S. Stone, Brig. Gen. (USAF) and Mrs. Elvin S. Ligon, Col. (USA) and Mrs. Theodore G. Bilbo, Col. (USA) and Mrs. Thomas H. Hayes, Col. (USA) and Mrs. N. P. Ward, 3d, and Col. (USAF) and Mrs. Paul T. Hanley.

Membership in the Cotillion (to a limiting number) is open to sons and daughters of active and retired officers of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard. Girls are eligible while juniors or seniors in high school, and boys while juniors or seniors in high school (or preparatory school) and for the first two years in college.

THE NAVAL OFFICERS' WIVES' CLUB of the Fifteenth Naval District, Canal Zone, Panama, has elected new officers for the next six months. Pictured in the center of the front row is Mrs. C. L. C. Atkeson, honorary president and wife of the Commandant of the Fifteenth Naval District. On her right is Mrs. J. E. Johnson, outgoing president and wife of Capt. J. E. Johnson, commanding officer of Naval Communications Station Balboa, and on her left is Mrs. G. N. Carroll, the new president and wife of Col. G. N. Carroll, commanding officer of the Marine Barracks, Fifteenth Naval District. Behind Mrs. Johnson is Mrs. E. M. Saunders, the outgoing vice president, and behind Mrs. Carroll is Mrs. J. A. Eastwood, the new vice president. Other new officers (on the right) are Mrs. R. G. Gunn (front row), recording secretary, and (back row) Mrs. A. D. Sartor, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. J. M. Park, treasurer. Other outgoing officers are (on the left) Mrs. H. H. Spicker (front row) and (back row) Mrs. H. J. Hoops, Jr., and Mrs. C. H. Hoke.

The dances of the Cotillion provide a means for Service sons and daughters to meet, under conditions similar to those they would find if their parents were stationed outside the Washington area. Since the turnover of Service families is relatively rapid, and it is difficult for the teenagers to get acquainted, program cards are used to insure general introductions. Junior hosts and hostesses help newcomers fill out their dance programs or "hop cards," before the music starts. A grand march, led by junior hosts and hostesses, helps to get things started, while mixed in with the program dances, there are one or two "Paul Jones" numbers.

The Cotillion has been very popular in past seasons, and a large number of applications have already been received for membership this year. A small number of vacancies are open for eligible boys, and those interested are requested to telephone Mr. N. P. Ward at Federal 3-3863, or Mrs. Paul Hanley at Jefferson 4-5247 for full information.

Navy Doctors' Wives of Washington—

Instead of its usual monthly luncheon, the Navy Doctors' Wives Club is planning a gala Thanksgiving eve party, for Wednesday, 21 Nov., in the form of a cocktail-buffet dinner dance. It will be held at the Commissioned Officers' Mess of the National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., from 6:30 p. m. to 12 midnight.

Mrs. Robert Brown is the chairman for the event, and Mrs. E. Van Der Aue is in charge of decorations, which will carry out the Thanksgiving theme. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Bruce Canaga at OL 6-7453.

Kruegers In New Home—

Col. (USA-Ret.) and Mrs. R. H. Krueger are now in their recently completed home at 1525 Greening Lane, Harrisburg, Pa. Colonel Krueger is with the General State Authority of Pennsylvania.

SigC Officers' Wives Club—

The regular monthly luncheon of the Signal Corps Officers' Wives Club was held at the Army-Navy Country Club, on 6 Nov., when honor guests were Mrs. Carter B. Magruder, wife of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics, and the wives of the Chiefs of the Technical Services, Mesdames Paul F. Yount, Emerson L. Cummings and Silas B. Hays.

Following luncheon, the members and their guests heard the representative of an Arlington, Va. florist shop talk on dried flower arrangements. Preceding the luncheon, the bridge group of the Club met for the morning hours.

Service Weddings and Engagements

HARBOTTLE-LESSER — Col. (USA-Ret.) and Mrs. Louis L. Lesser of 4851 East 45th St., Seattle, Wash., announced the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Ann, to Mr. John Harbottle, jr., at a buffet supper at their home, on 28 October. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harbottle of Tacoma, Wash.

Miss Lesser

Miss Lesser, who was graduated from Seattle University last Spring and is a member of the Kappa Gamma Pi Catholic honorary society, is currently listed in Who's Who of American Universities and Colleges for 1955-56. She was the 1955 National Amateur and Western Amateur golf champion, as well as the holder of the Helen Lee Doherty and South Atlantic titles. This past Summer, Miss Lesser represented the United States in the Curtis Cup Matches at Sandwich, England, and has been named Seattle's "Man of the Year."

Mr. Harbottle, a graduate of Seattle University, where he was on the varsity golf team, is now a student at the University of Washington Dental School. The wedding date has not been set.

RUFF-RICHARDSON — Mr. and Mrs. Marshall G. Richardson of Redlands, Calif., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Georgene, to Ens. Lowell H. Ruff, jr., USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ruff, sr., of Columbus, Ohio.

Miss Richardson is presently a student at Whittier College, from which she will graduate in January. Ensign Ruff was graduated from Ohio State University in 1955.

A December wedding is planned, at Redlands.

GROSSMAN-GRANT — Mr. and Mrs. Sam D. Grant have announced the engagement of their daughter, Judy, to Lt.(jg) Richard E. Grossman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis D. Grossman of Newport, R. I.

GREENFIELD-BEELER — Mrs. Jane Beeler, widow of Col. George Wood Beeler, Arty, USA, (USMA '33), and Mr. Milton Greenfield, jr., of St. Louis, Mo., were married on 8 November.

The bride was given in marriage by her son, Mr. George W. Beeler, jr., and her daughter, Miss Janet Beeler, was her mother's only attendant.

Mr. and Mrs. Greenfield will make their home at 7221 Maryland Ave., St. Louis, 5.

THOMER-DRYSDALE — Miss Mary Ann Drysdale, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Walter Scott Drysdale, jr., was married to Lt. Joseph Norman Thomer, USA, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Thomer of Doylestown, Pa., recently, at the Post Chapel, Ft. Lewis, Wash., with Chaplain (Col.) James McMahon officiating at the double ring service.

Mrs. Thomer

The bride's maid of honor was Miss Patricia Slayden with Misses Carol Brown and Lloyd Owens serving as bridesmaids and little Miss Judith Coughy as flower girl. Best man for Lieutenant Thomer was Lt. David Connelly and ushering were Lts. Charles Johnson, William Hadley and Clyde Massey.

Granddaughter of Col. and Mrs. W. S. Drysdale, sr., the bride attended Ohio State University and the College of Puget Sound. Her husband, a graduate of the Borden Military Academy, was graduated from the U.S. Military Academy in 1955.

The couple will make their home at Eielson AFB, Alaska.

BECKMAN-WILSON — Mr. and Mrs. York Lowry Wilson have announced the engagement of their daughter, Suzanna Middleton, to Lt. Francis Ridley Beckman, USA, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Beckman of Cape Girardeau, Mo.

YES,
THERE'S A
DIFFERENCE

The wood-burning locomotive did its job, but today's big diesels are necessary for today's heavier transportation demands. Insurance, too, changes to meet specific needs. For example, the recent Survivor Benefits Act has materially altered the income needs of nearly every serviceman's family. Today G.P.M. offers plans to the Military and Navy, tailored to fit today's needs. G.P.M. was founded specifically to serve, and today still specializes in serving Military & Naval men all over the world. G.P.M. has more than $140,000,000 insurance in force and is recommended by Best's and other leading insurance rating authorities.

Maj. James Barkley Norcross, USAFR
Maj. James Barkley Norcross, USAFR, died on 7 Nov., at the County Hospital, Santa Clara, Calif., of a sudden attack of poliomyelitis, with which he was stricken only three days after returning from a tour of active duty at Camp Edwards, Calif., in the Mojave Desert. He was 34 years old.

Born at Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D. C., Major Norcross served in the Air Force during WWII. His war service included nine months as an Aviation Cadet at UCLA's Meteorology School; an assignment with the Weather Equipment Methods Section at Sea Girt, N. J., as a member of a pioneer group concerned with the development and application of radar in the field of Meteorology; seven months at the Harvard-MIT Radar School; service as an instructor in Applied Radar at Sea Girt; and, in 1945, he flew to India to establish a storm-warning net in the Bay of Bengal. Following the end of the war, Major Norcross was assigned as Weather Service Liaison Officer with the RAF and French government at Saigon, Indo-China, later going to Shanghai, China as Technical Liaison Officer with the Chinese Air Force in April 1946. His last assignment, before returning to the States and terminating his active duty, was in Weather Forecasting at Tokyo, Japan. In June 1947, Major Norcross was graduated from Pennsylvania State College with a B.S. degree in Physics and Engineering, and became a Research Assistant in the Department of Meteorology at the University of Chicago. In 1949, he attended UCLA and later, the University of California at Berkeley and since then, he had been associated with the Ampex Corporation at Redwood, Calif.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Margaret Ann Norcross of 24501 Summerfield, Los Altos, Calif.; three children, Nancy Aileen, 4, David Melvin, 2, and Elizabeth Erin, 6 months; and his parents, Col. (Ret) and Mrs. F. T. Norcross of 4420 Hawthorne St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Commo. Norman Campbell Gillette, USN-Ret.
A Requiem Mass was celebrated at the Ft. Myer, Va. Chapel, on 7 Nov., for Commo. Norman Campbell Gillette, USN-Ret., who died on 2 Nov., at the U.S. Naval Hospital, Bethesda, Md., at the age of 66. Burial was at Arlington National Cemetery.

A native of Chicago, Commodore Gillette was an outstanding 1913 graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy. In the early 1920's, he introduced technical innovations in fire control and gunnery, and led in the design, development and testing of the then radical 5-inch 25-calibre anti-aircraft gun and fire control system. Commodore Gillette was a veteran of three major military actions, having seen service at Vera Cruz, with the Grand Fleet in WWI and participated with distinction in WWII. During the latter, Commodore Gillette commanded the cruiser USS Tuscaloosa; a task unit in the North Atlantic convoys. In 1944, he was named Deputy Commander of the Philippine Sea Frontier. His Naval career included three tours of duty in Washington, D. C., command of the Naval Ordnance Plant at Centerline, Mich., and the Ammunition Depot at Hawthorne, Nev. Since his retirement from active duty in 1949, Commodore Gillette had made his home at Long Beach, Calif.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Florence Kathleen Gillette of 216 Roswell Ave., Long Beach; two sons, Capt. N. C. Gillette, Jr.,

1st Lt. James Robert Lindsay, 3d, USAF

Funeral services were held on 12 Nov., at the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., for 1st Lt. James Robert Lindsay, 3d, USAF, who was killed near Victorville, Calif., on 5 Nov., when he jumped from his faltering jet fighter and his parachute remained unopened. He was 25 years old.

The son of the late Col. J. R. Lindsay, Jr., USA, Lieutenant Lindsay is survived by his widow, Mrs. Martha M. Lindsay of 3105-B Oaklawn, Victoria, Tex.; one daughter, Susan B. Lindsay; one son, James R. Lindsay, 4th; and his mother, Mrs. Martha B. Foy, wife of Col. L. W. Foy, USA-Ret., of 2330 Leu Rd., Orlando, Fla.

Col. Charles K. Berle, MC, USA-Ret.

Col. Charles K. Berle, MC, USA-Ret., died at Letterman Army Hospital Presidio of San Francisco, on 13 Sept.

Colonel Berle was graduated from the University of Louisville Medical School, and saw service on the Mexican Border. In WWI, he served in the U. S. Army Ambulance Service with the French Army. During WWII, Colonel Berle was Commanding Officer of Barnes General Hospital, Vancouver, Wash., and of O'Reilly General Hospital at Springfield, Mo. He was a Fellow of the American College of Physicians and a Diplomat of Medicine.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Emma Lee Berle of 101 Dorantes Ave., San Francisco; one daughter, Mrs. James B. Weaver, and two granddaughters, of Tokyo, Japan.

Four Air Force Officers Killed

Four Air Force officers of the 95th Bomb Wing, Altus AFB, Okla., were killed when a B-47 jet bomber plunged into a field, near Hobart, Okla., on 6 Nov. They were Capt. Francis P. Bouchard, pilot; Maj. Joseph E. Willford, Capt. Lee D. Ellis, Jr., all of Altus AFB, and Lt. Andrew J. Toalson of Bartlesville, Okla.

Col. Hiram E. Tuttle, USA-Ret.

Funeral services were held on 13 Nov., at the National Cemetery, Ft. Riley, Kans., for Col. Hiram E. Tuttle, USA-Ret., who died, after a prolonged illness at the U. S. Army Hospital, Ft. Riley, on 11 Nov., at the age of 73.

A native of Dexter, Me., Colonel Tuttle will long be remembered for his outstanding skill as a dressage rider and member of the U.S. Equestrian Team in the Olympic Games at Los Angeles, in 1932, and at Berlin, Germany, in 1936. For many years, he gave exhibitions at the National Horse Shows at Madison Square Garden, New York City, and was a featured attraction at horse and livestock shows all over the country. Colonel Tuttle developed and trained such great dressage horses as the famed Olympic performers, Vast, Si Murray and Peter Brown, often showing Vast in the intricate dressage movements, while using only silk thread reins. A member of the Massachusetts Bar, Colonel Tuttle was also a master mechanic, a talented violinist, a watchmaker and, for many years, was leader and director of the Ft. Riley Dramatic Club productions. Since his retirement from active duty, in 1942, he had made his home at Junction City, Kans.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Gladys Layton Tuttle of Junction City; and one sister, Mrs. C. J. Niessing of Long Island, N.Y.

Psy War Conference

Ends At Ft. Bragg

"The best opportunity for both Psychological and Unconventional (guerrilla) Warfare is the day war begins," Maj. Gen. O. C. Troxel, Jr., chief of Psychological Warfare, told officers attending the first Army-wide seminar on Psychological Warfare held at Fort Bragg.

Speaking before representatives from military installations throughout the nation, Gen. Troxel discussed the potential of Psychological Warfare operations against an enemy.

"This country has used both unconventional and psychological warfare in every war it has been in. During WW II the program proved effective. Again in the Korean Conflict, Psychological and Unconventional Warfare were used."

He pointed to the increased importance given to Psychological Warfare since the end of the Korean Conflict.

Integration of the Office of the Chief of Psychological Warfare as a unit of the Department of the Army following the Korean Conflict "has provided for continued improvement and development of Psychological and Unconventional Warfare . . . both essential elements of modern warfare," the PsyWar chief said.

A prime purpose of the seminar was to develop both Psychological and Unconventional Warfare as a more integral part of the operations of the reserve components of the Army.

During the seminar at Ft. Bragg's Psychological Warfare Center, observers witnessed demonstrations by the 77th Special Forces Group paratroopers on guerrilla methods, mountain climbing, underwater demolition and survival techniques.

Other speakers who addressed the seminar included: Maj. Gen. Paul D. Adams, Commanding General of XVIII Airborne Corps and Fort Bragg; Col. William J. Mullen, Jr., commander of the PsyWar Center; and Col. Noel A. Menard, commander of the 77th Special Forces.

VAdm. W. M. Callaghan Leads Two Commands

VADM. William M. Callaghan, USN Commander, Naval Forces, Far East, with Headquarters in Japan, was to put on two hats as Commander, Western Sea Frontier and Commander, Pacific Reserve Fleet, on 16 Nov., at Treasure Island, Calif.

He succeeds RADM. John R. Redman, USN, Commander, 12th Naval District, who temporarily has held the two extra posts since the 30 June retirement of VADM. Francis S. Low, USN-Ret.

A 1918 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, Admiral Callaghan is the brother of RADM. Daniel J. Callaghan, USN, who was killed in action aboard the cruiser USS San Francisco during WW II.

He was the first Commander of the Military Sea Transportation Service, the world's largest shipping concern.

VADM. Callaghan

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

L. EUGENE ROOT, widely known in research and development circles, has been appointed vice president of Lockheed Aircraft Corp. and general manager of its expanding new missile systems division. A former top executive in the Rand Corp. and chairman of the Aerodynamics Advisory Panel of AEC at Los Alamos, Root succeeds Lockheed senior vice president, HALL L. HIBBARD, who has been pro tem director of the division. HERSCHEL J. BROWN, who has been acting assistant general manager of the missile division, has been appointed permanently to that position.

Warren E. Milner has been appointed to the newly created position of manager of the Milwaukee plants of AC Spark Plug Division of General Motors, which are engaged in several large guided missile and other defense projects. He will be in charge of all AC-Milwaukee operations, including defense engineering, production and sales, and defense engineering activities in Flint, Mich.

Temco Aircraft Corp., Dallas, Texas, has signed a contract that will extend its production of outer wings for the P2V Neptune into September 1957. Temco President Robert McCulloch said the new contract is the eighth successive order for Neptune wing panels that the company has received from Lockheed Aircraft Corp., Burbank, Calif. Wings for the famous patrol plane have rolled from Temco's production lines since 1950.

Four YC-122 cargo aircraft that cost $1,984,000 are being offered for sealed bid sale this month by the Air Force.

Bids on the planes will be opened at Norton AFB, Calif., 21 Nov. The aircraft are stored at Davis-Monthan AFB, Tucson, Ariz., and may be inspected by contacting the Property Disposal Officer there.

Spare parts for the YC-122 will be offered for sale immediately following sale of the aircraft. Terms of the sale and complete descriptions of the aircraft are contained in Norton AFB sealed Bid No. 04-607-S-57-9.

Consolidated net sales of General Dynamics Corp. and subsidiaries during the first nine months of 1956 were higher than consolidated net sales for the entire year of 1955, and both sales and earnings were higher than during any other comparable period in the Corporation's peacetime history. John Jay Hopkins, chairman and president of the Corporation, said consolidated net sales were $691,009,401 for the first nine months of 1956 as compared with $687,274,182 for the entire year of 1955.

HARRY B. HORNE, JR., has been promoted to manager of contracts and spares, Vertol Aircraft Corp. William E. Hughes was promoted to manager, contracts department.

Appointments and changes in the Engineering Department of Hoover Electronics Co., Baltimore, have been announced by Charles W. Barbour, vice president of engineering. DAVID P. COFFIN, JR., has been appointed chief of the Defense Projects Section. Named to head the Mechanical Engineering section is JOHN P. GOBETTI, who was an advisory engineer at the Westinghouse Air Arm in Baltimore before joining the Hoover firm recently. KEVIN LYNCH, a former supervisor of inspection at the Martin Co., has been appointed chief of the Quality Control Section. RAYMOND P. MOORE, JR., a 1948 graduate of Rensselaer Polytechnic, has assumed the duties of manager of Engineering Services. ROBERT P. WEHRMANN will head the Telemetering Section. FRANK PARISH has been made Administrative Assistant to Mr. Barbour.

Joins Textile Agency

Lt. Col. Neill S. Atkins, jr., USA, has been assigned as Chief, Data Processing Division of the new Military Clothing and Textile Supply Agency—Philadelphia Quartermaster Depot, U. S. Army, it is announced by Maj. Gen. Webster Anderson, USA, Executive Director.

Colonel Atkins is installing the electronic data processing system for the Agency. He was previously assigned as Chief, Data Processing Division of the Quartermaster Inventory Control Center, Richmond, Va. Quartermaster Depot, where he also installed a similar system when the Center was activated in January 1956.

Insurers Group Elects Col. Cheever President

Col. C. E. Cheever, USA-Ret., president of United Services Automobile Association, of San Antonio, Tex., has been elected president of the National Association of Independent Insurers, Chicago, Ill. He succeeds Leo M. Goodwin, sr., president of Government Employees Insurance Company of Washington, D. C.

A former member of N.A.I.I.'s board of governors, Colonel Cheever has been active in Association affairs during the 10 years United Services has held membership.

Colonel Cheever retired in 1948 after 30 years' service. During WW II he served as Judge Advocate on the staff of General George S. Patton and later organized and supervised the war crimes tribunals at Dachau.

They Keep Busy

CAPT. JOHN S. HARPER, USN-Ret., USNA '22, has joined the Hoover Electronics Company, of Baltimore, Md., as Assistant to John M. Pearce, Vice President and General Manager. Prior to joining Hoover Electronics, he was associated with the firm of Anderson-Nichols and Company, of Boston. He lives at 552 Valley View Road, Hampton, Md.

BRIG. GEN. STERLING A. WOOD, USA-Ret., is the Chief Inspector, Sottile Banking Division, Miami, Fla. Under the control of James Sottile, jr., who owns a number of banks in central and southern Florida, the inspection service assists in checking all financial records to insure complete compliance with all Federal and State Banking Laws.

MAJ. JOHN H. HEALY, USA-Ret., resident of Carr Canyon, Ariz., and familiar to many in Southeastern Arizona as a rancher, big-game hunter, historian and ex-cavalryman stationed at Fort Huachuca, has been employed as historian at Fort Huachuca.

Federal Electric Corp., field service and maintenance subsidiary of the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., has announced the appointment of CAPT. FREDERICK OWEN VAUGHAN, SC, USN-Ret., as Assistant Director for Supply for the Distant Early Warning Line. Captain Vaughan will be responsible to Admiral Jesse Sowell, Director of Supply, for the fulfillment of logistic requirements for the DEW Line System. He will work from the Lodi headquarters of Federal Electric Corp. He and his family make their home in Mountain Lakes, N. J., at 3 Pomerville Road.

M/SGT. JOHN E. OLIVER, chief clerk of military personnel and head of the Office Services Branch, The Infantry Center Quartermaster Section, Ft. Benning, Ga., received a Letter of Commendation on his retirement after 25 years of service. Sergeant Oliver plans to enter Heald's Business College, Oakland, Calif., for a course in accounting and business administration, following which he hopes to open a bookkeeping service for small businesses. He will reside at 1856 79th Ave., Oakland.

New Officers Head

Gorgas Memorial Institute

At the annual meeting of the Gorgas Memorial Institute of Tropical and Preventive Medicine, Inc., held in Washington on 7 Nov., Col. Joseph F. Siler, M.C. USA-Ret., was re-elected president, post which he has held since 1941.

Other officers re-elected are Maurice H. Thatcher, vice president and general counsel; Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn, secretary; Hulbert T. Bisselle, treasurer, and Donald A. McCormack, assistant treasurer.

A group of eleven directors was selected for a term of three years, including Dr. Ricardo J. Alfaro, Col. Robert L. Callison, USA, Dr. Herbert C. Clark, Capt. Miles P. DuVal, USN-Ret, Mr. Robert V. Fleming, Dr. E. F. Knipping, Colonel Siler, Dr. Fred L. Soper, Representative John Taber (R-NY), and Dr. Willard H. Wright.

Capt. H. K. Sessions, USN, was elected to the board of directors to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. Rolla B. Hill.

Ex officio directors elected for one year include the Surgeon Generals of the Army, Navy, and Air Force.

An advisory scientific board was named and included the following military members: Robert W. Babione, executive secretary, Armed Forces Epidemiological Board; Brig. Gen. George R. Callender, chief, Pathology and Allied Sciences Division, Department of Medicine and Surgery, Veterans Administration; Col. Francis C. Coults, deputy director, Armed Forces Institute of Pathology; Col. Norman W. Elton, commanding officer, First Army Medical Laboratory; Brig. Gen. Don Longfellow, Army Physical Review Council; Col. Richard P. Mason, commandant, Walter Reed Army Institute of Research; Radm. Charles S. Stephenson, M. C., USN-Ret; Col. William S. Stone, dean, University of Maryland School of Medicine; Capt. O. E. Van Der Aue, commanding officer, Navy Medical Research Institute, and Brig. Gen. Charles M. Watson, M.C., USA-Ret.

Honor Retired Colonel

COL. JOHN W. GRAHAM, USA, Commandant, and the officers and their wives of the New York Ordnance District tendered a testimonial dinner to Col. F. McCrossin, USA-Ret., at the Officers Club, Fort Jay, Governors Island, N. Y. The dinner was given in recognition for Colonel McCrossin's services as the Civilian District Chief of the New York Ordnance District since 1953. One of the foremost industrial and mining engineers of the country, Colonel McCrossin is president of the firm of McCrossin & Company.

MAJ. PETER F. OZENBERGER, USA, assistant planning and training officer of the Provost Marshal section, Fourth Army headquarters, retired 31 Oct. after 20 years' Army service. He will continue to make his home at 624 Kashmir Place, San Antonio, Tex.

Capt. Driskell Chosen

Capt. Melville M. Driskell, M.C. US, Chief of Medicine, U. S. Naval Hospital Newport, R. I., has been awarded a Fellowship in the American College of Cardiology.

Terminal Freight Chief

Lt. Col. Willard M. Nyburg, USA, has been named Chief of the Freight Terminal Division, Bay Area Army Terminal Center, at Ft. Mason, Calif. He succeeds Col. Benjamin I. LaFlare, USA, assigned overseas.

In centrifugal testing

from sub-miniature electronic components to massive turbine rotors

AMF has experience you can use

• The SIGHT LIGHT Division of AMF is now designing and producing centrifuges capable of developing forces in excess of 50,000 times gravity—Spin-Test equipment capable of speeds above 100,000 rpm. • And these are just a part of the highly specialized yet widely diversified activities of some 35 engineering and production facilities that provide AMF with a wealth of experience covering nearly every field of industry. Experience immediately available to you. • So call upon AMF with your problem. See for yourself why this all-around experience in answering the needs of government and industry alike has made AMF a "can do" company. • For further information, write to the Sight Light Division, Deep River, Connecticut.

Gruenther Trophy Goes To 4th AF In International Reconnaissance Meet

of a first phase intelligence report. Scoring was based on several factors, among them:

- (i) accuracy of time over the first target,
- (ii) correct location and identification of all targets on the missions,
- (iii) accuracy and quality of photographic coverage, and
- (iv) completeness and accuracy of the intelligence report.

A maximum of one pass only was allowed on each target—which permitted no margin for error in the navigation department, and to make it even more difficult, no navigational aids were allowed en route or returning from target areas. Interestingly enough, the navigation phase of the exercise proved to be one of the least of the difficulties in turning in a successful sortie.

TARGETS FOR THE EVENT INCLUDED an airfield, rail and road line and rail center for the high altitude missions, and a bridge, airfield, and radar site for the low level crews.

Observers in the target areas furnished a minute-by-minute report on changing target conditions, thus confirmed the information contained in the photo intelligence reports rendered by the air crews upon completion of their missions. In order to assure complete impartiality in the selection of the winners, an international judging team was appointed with one officer from each nationality participating in the event, with a neutral Canadian officer serving as head of the judging team. Scores were computed on an impersonal basis—in that the judges knew only the sortie numbers—thus only the chief umpire, with the master crew list, knew in advance which crew, and which ATAF had emerged as winners.

All participating aircraft arrived in place at Lahr on the afternoon of 10 October, and the final crew briefing was held on schedule early on the morning of the 17th. Both high and low missions took off on the day selected two months previously for the competition—a tribute in part, at least, to the AIRCENT weather officer for his long range weather forecasting ability. It was likewise a tribute to the maintenance ability of the supporting ground crews in that no aborted missions or equipment failures were evidenced during any phase of the competition.

THE PHOTOGRAPHIC COVERAGE resulting from the missions was of extremely high quality, and a fine series of pictures and intelligence reports were turned in by the crews for review by the judges. In that aircraft and ground support photographic laboratories had all come a long distance to operate at a neutral base at Lahr, the exercise proved to be a test of the mobile capability which is important to present day tactical reconnaissance organizations.

Crews from the Fourth Allied Tactical Air Force, represented by French and American crews, won the day. Their margin of victory over the Second Tactical Air Force, which was represented by British, Belgian, and Netherlands crews, was, however, slight: 610 points as against 532, a fact that attested to the professional skill and training of all of the competing aircrews.

The winner of the high level test was Lt. Michel Duhaumont, a French RF84F pilot from the NATO-committed 33d Tactical Reconnaissance Wing at Cognac. He defeated the Canberra PR7 and RB 57 entries from the U.K. and the U.S. Second place on the high level mission was awarded to Lt. John Nicholson of the 30th USAF Tactical Reconnaissance Squadron in an RB 57. Winner of the low altitude sorties was Lt. John W. Dillard, USAF, also piloting a Republic Thunderflash (RF84F).

The second ATAF Mobile Field Photographic Section carried off its own special honors, however, and with a score of 98 points out of a possible 100, won the special ground laboratory phase of the competition for speed and quality in film processing and printing. The integrated British, Belgian and Dutch photo lab team was six minutes slower than their Fourth ATAF rivals but made an overwhelming lead in points gained through negative and print quality.

THE GRUENTHER TROPHY, a handsome silver and gold trophy suitably inscribed, "Awarded to the Fourth ATAF for Reconnaissance Excellence," was presented to the most junior officer of the Fourth ATAF team, by Air Marshal Sir Theodore N. McEvoy, Chief of Staff, Allied Air Forces Central Europe. The trophy was donated by the Republic Aviation Corporation, and will become the permanent possession of the first ATAF to win the award three times.

Additional trophies which were donated by the Glenn L. Martin Aircraft Company were awarded to the first and second place squadrons in the high and low altitude events by Maj. Gen. Karl Truesdell, USAF, Deputy Chief of Staff, Operations at AIRCENT. All participating aircrew members will receive silver plaques from the Vickers-Armstrong Aircraft Company, Ltd.

All of the participants were unanimous in their desire for a return match next year. It is hoped that this may become an annual event, and that the Gruenther Trophy for Reconnaissance Excellence will parallel, on an international scale, the prestige of today's highest aviation honors.
